DRISCOLL HELD BY POLICE ON AN ASSAULT CHARGE

JOSEPH THOMPSON, SWITCHMAN, IS STILL UNCONSCIOUS FROM INJURIES RECEIVED.

Driscoll Insisted That He Acted In Self Defense and That Thompson Provoked the Assault.

Joseph A. Thompson, the railroad switchman, who was hit over the head with a bottle of liniment by Lewis Driscoll, Wednesday night, still remains in a precarious condition. He lapsed into unconsciousness Thursday and with the exception of a few short intervals has remained in that state ever since. He is suffering with concussion and is being attended by Dr. D. M. Smith.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Mamie Thompson, wife of the injured man, swore to an affidavit charging Driscoll with assault with intent to kill. Driscoll had previously been arrested when it was learned that Thompson's injuries were serious. Saturday afternoon he pleaded not guilty, waived preliminary examination and was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $500, which was furnished by his employer, Lewis P. Bolton.

Mr. Driscoll claims that he was justified in assaulting Thompson although he had no intention of injuring him so badly. He stated that Thompson provoked the quarrel by following him to his barn and into the office where he threatened to do him. He said the blow was struck in self defense.

Arabs Make an Attack. Tangier, Morocco, Aug. 10.—Arab tribesmen to the number of 5,000 or 6,000 attacked General Drude's camp outside Casablanca. They were driven off with considerable loss. Later they renewed the attack and again were repulsed. The French troops are in splendid condition and spirits. The warships supported them by a steady shell fire on the horsemen. When the French consul at Casablanca arrived he received a letter from Muley Amin, military governor of Casablanca, officially approving the action of the French forces and asking the aid of France in punishing agitators. The latest advices received here do not confirm the reported bombardment of Mazagan. Advices from Mogador dated Aug. 7 say everything was quiet there then, and that no trouble was apprehended. Morocco City is quiet.

Railways Taxed. Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 10.—In its consideration of the general tax act, the Georgia house adopted an amendment imposing on every railroad and street railway a tax of 1 per cent on the gross receipts of all business done, payable on or before the tenth of the month succeeding that in which the earnings are made.

Southern Fares Reduced. Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 10.—The restraining order issued some time ago against the state to prevent the operation of laws affecting railroads, has been modified in the federal court to allow the Southern railway and allied lines to put in the 2½-cent passenger fares and the state freight schedule fixing the rates on commodities in the state.

Sold by All Good Dealers

A piano dealer makes a smaller profit on a RAYMOND PIANO than on any other piano you can buy for less. As a rule, the cheaper the piano, the more money a dealer makes on it in proportion.

Yet all good dealers prefer to sell RAYMOND PIANOS on a small margin because each RAYMOND PIANO quickly sells another.

A smaller profit on a RAYMOND PIANO which guarantees lifelong satisfaction, is better than a larger profit on a cheap piano which is sure to prove a disappointment. Besides the dealer secures your good will and respect; he knows that the name RAYMOND on both piano and ten-year guarantee is as good as gold, and he is sure that he is building his business on the rock of honesty.

Fifty-one years building instruments—think of it! No wonder the RAYMOND PIANOS stand for highest quality, durability, voice tone and sustaining power.

Honestly built of honest material, good for a lifetime. You cannot afford to decide the question as to what Piano you will buy until you have sent for our Piano Book and read it over carefully.

It is full of information of vital importance to you.

YOUNG WOMAN SAVED SISTERS FROM BURNING

BURNING ALCOHOL SATURATED CLOTHING OF MRS. DEAN AT DR. SOOK'S HOME.

Rug Used by Miss Sook to Extinguish the Flames, and Her Hands Were Burned.

The presence of mind of Miss Gertrude Sook, 231 North Fourth street, saved her sister, Mrs. Arthur Dean of Chicago from serious and perhaps fatal injuries, Saturday morning. Mrs. Dean was preparing a hot application for her mother, Mrs. O. P. Sook, and accidentally a bottle containing alcohol burst and caught fire. The burning fluid was thrown upon the clothing of Mrs. Dean which immediately caught fire.

Her sister rushed to her assistance and with great presence of mind caught up a rug from the floor and wrapped it around her sister, extinguishing the flames. In doing so her hands were badly burned.

Some of the fluid falling on the floor caused a small blaze which burned up a table cover and scorched the walls. The damage was small and covered by insurance.

All Out at Fort Worth. Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 10.—All Western Union telegraphers walked out on strike.

Trouble in New Orleans. New Orleans, Aug. 10.—Trouble developed at the Postal Telegraph office in this city when an operator refused to work the Chicago wire. He was immediately suspended by the wire chief and the company's local officials were sent for to settle the matter, if possible.

At the Western Union an extra operator who was ordered to make relief on the Chicago wire refused and was discharged. The union operators, however, did not make an issue of the matter because the discharged operator was an extra man.

Columbus Telegraphers. Columbus, O., Aug. 10.—The operators employed in the local office of the Western Union voted to strike unless their demands for the reinstatement of Operator L. E. Hart and a more equitable division of extra work are complied with. Hart was discharged because he refused to work on a wire into Chicago with a non-union man. The men demanded his reinstatement, but the company refused.

Postal Men All Out. New Orleans, Aug. 10.—All the New Orleans Postal Telegraph company operators, numbering about 60, left their wires, pending the arrival at the office of Superintendent W. A. Porteous.

Night Force Quits. Kansas City, Mo.,—Practically the entire night force of operators in the Western Union struck when the time for going to work arrived, joining the day operators.

In Sympathy. Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 10.—The local force of clerks and operators at the Western Union went on strike.

WESTERN UNION AND POSTAL WILL STILL DO BUSINESS

Newark Offices Not Affected by Big Strike in Chicago—Will Not Involve Small Offices.

The big strike of union telegraphers throughout the country will have no effect in the Newark offices of either the Western Union or the Postal Telegraph companies, other than to slightly delay for an indefinite time messages intended for the strike centers.

Manager R. L. Rhodes of the local Western Union office, and Mrs. Mary A. Swan, manager of the Postal office, are not anticipating a serious spread of the strike, and do not think it will involve the local offices.

Messages for strike centers and for other points which must be relayed from cities affected by the walk-out of operators, are being accepted subject to delay in delivery at the receiving end.

Why Do You

place a sign before your place of business? Because you want your friends to know you are in business. If you did not do so, it would take years for them to find out where you were or what you were doing. How do you expect your friends to know you have a house, lot, horse, buggy, or any other article for sale unless you put up your sign. THE VERY BEST place to put that sign is in THE ADVOCATE WANT COLUMNS. Because they reach the people today, tomorrow, all the time. Because, the cost is so little—only 25 cents for 18 words 3 days.

WILL IT REORGANIZE

Question As to Status of Lower House of Legislature.

EAGLESON AND THE SPEAKERSHIP

Election of New Speaker and Reorganization of Committees Would Cause
Endless Confusion—Some Measures
Already Being Discussed—Taft's
Trip to Ohio—State Affairs.

Columbus, O., Aug. 10.—Since the legislative reunion at Cedar Point an interesting question has arisen concerning the organization of the house
for the session beginning next January. Because of the shifting around,
occasioned by the new election laws,
after spring elections were abolished,
so as to have municipal and general elections alternate under a system of biennial elections, the present legislature will have two sessions under the law requiring that sessions of the legislature be held biennially. This will be the first time since annual sessions were abolished for a general assembly to hold two regular or adjourning sessions, special sessions being no exception in the matter of precedent. In deciding the question of organization for next session the house
must look to the procedure when there

FREEMAN T. EAGLESON.

were annual sessions to find a precedent. That doubt exists on this point was indicated in the remarks addressed to the members at the Cedar Point reunion when the governor offered his suggestions with the reservation,
"whether you are reorganized or not."

So far as the house is concerned,
the question of organization arises chiefly over the speakership, because of the election of Carmi A. Thompson, speaker in 1906, to the office of secretary of state. Under the usual procedure the speaker pro tempore becomes acting speaker in the absence of the speaker. In case of vacancy occurring in the speakership during a session it is well understood that the organization of the house would continue without change, the speaker pro tempore assuming the routine duties of the speaker. Will this rule hold in case of vacancy occurring between sessions? If so, the present organization of the house will continue, minus the speaker, whose routine duties will be assumed by the speaker pro tempore, Representative Freeman T. Eagleson of Guernsey county. This would leave all the committees intact as appointed by Speaker Thompson for the session last year, except for the filling of vacancies. If the house reorganizes,
Mr. Eagleson may be elected speaker,
or the house might elect somebody else; and whether Mr. Eagleson or some other member should be elected to succeed Mr. Thompson as speaker de facto, the question would instantly arise as to the status of the committees, for it is one of the prerogatives
of the speaker to appoint the standing committees of the house.

To appoint new committees would mean to annul all committee actions on bills pending and restore all such measures as unfinished business before the new committees to which the same would be transferred, which would mean an endless amount of confusion and rob the house of all advantage gained on previous consideration of such measures by committees. It might even restore to life
some of the bills killed by the present committees by indefinite postponement or by being laid on the table.
When the legislature met annually
the second session resumed business
where the first session left it at adjourning. If this precedent is followed, which seems most probable,
the house will not elect a speaker to fill the vacancy and Mr. Eagleson as speaker pro tempore will become the actual head of the house as acting speaker, and the present committees will continue as now organized. The most important change in any committee would be the chairmanship of the finance committee, because of the vacancy caused by the appointment of Representative E. W. Baldwin of Ash-tubula county, who was chairman of this important committee last year as a member of the state board of public works.

There is not so much uncertainty
as to the status of the senate organization. The presiding officer of the senate is the lieutenant governor, elected by the people. The senate cannot elect a lieutenant governor to succeed General Harris, who became acting governor after the death of Governor Fattison. The senate elects a president pro tempore, in which capacity Senator Williams will be the actual presiding officer of the senate next session.

Even if the senate were to reorganize
it is not probable that any change would be made in its present organization. The senate as a committee of the whole selects its own standing committees, so that it is not likely that any changes would be made if the senate were to go to all the trouble of selecting new committees.
Although the senate is no criterion
to the house in the matter of organization, if the senate does not reorganize
for next session there will be apparently no reason why the house should reorganize.

The proposed primary election bill
as drafted by a committee of the Primary Election Reform league is meeting with opposition from all directions.
Members of the legislature's committees on elections do not feel inclined to meet with the league's committee for the purpose of redrafting such a measure. They put on the full dignity of statesmanship and let it be known that they expect the proponents of such measures to come before the committees when the legislature is in session. The chief objection to the primary election bill, though many are urged against it, is the feature providing for the nomination of candidates for state offices at a popular primary. This would do away with the convention plan and leave the parties no way of promulgating party platforms. There will be no state primary law, but a county primary law
based upon the Bronson bill is certain to be evaded.

Opposition to the county local option
bill is formulated on the assumption that by enacting the Aikin law increasing the saloon tax, the Jones residential district law and the search and seizure law, the present legislature has done enough in the way of sumptuary
legislation. State option as a proposition is a step the present legislature
will not and probably no future legislature will care to tackle. Officials of the Anti-Saloon league are being somewhat criticised for consenting to a proposition to exempt "the large cities" from the county option bill.
The question of how big a city must be to be considered "a large city" is very much a matter of local pride.
Besides, it is difficult to understand how any city can be omitted without raising the old bugaboo of "special legislation" except by that old pretext for all such exceptional legislation, the police power.

Candidates are sprouting for nominations to be made by the state Republican convention next year. State Secretary Thompson and other state officials serving their first terms will be candidates for renomination. J. G.
Obermyer, who became supreme court
clerk by appointment, after the resignation of Lawson G. Emerson, desires renomination for the same place. Thomas J. Edwards, clerk of courts in Allen county, and J. S. McNutt of Colum-biana county are also candidates for this nomination. E. M. Pullington, deputy state auditor, is a candidate
without opposition so far for nomination for auditor. Smith W. Bennett, special counsel in the attorney general's office, and Representative Warren Thomas of Trumbull county, chairman of the house judiciary committee, want the nomination for attorney general.

Much interest in and beyond Ohio
is felt in what Secretary of War Taft may have to say in his speech in Columbus Aug. 19 under the auspices of the Buckeye Republican club. In some of the recent speeches of Senator Foraker he practically challenged Mr. Taft to state his exact views on tariff revision, and to make his position clear on the tariff issue. The club is looking to the smallest detail to make
Mr. Taft's visit to Columbus an occasion of prime importance.

Governor Harris has accepted the invitation of the Buckeye club to act as chairman of the meeting. The invitation was extended by Chairman Allen of the entertainment committee, who was accompanied by Henry A.
Williams of the Taft headquarters force. The governor will preside at the meeting and on the following day will attend the Sons of Veterans encampment at Dayton. An autograph letter from Secretary Taft, dated Pointe-au-Pic, Canada, has been received by Chairman Allen. Mr. Taft writes: "My Dear Sir:—I beg to thank you for the kind invitation of the Buckeye Republican club to make an address on the evening of Monday,
Aug. 19, on the national issues, and to accept the same with pleasure."

The state commission that was appointed to revise and codify the statutes of Ohio was expected to complete its work in time to make a final report to the legislature next year. Now it is believed the commission will not be able to finish its work this year and will ask for an extension of time until the next session of the legislature, which will be in 1909.

Governor Harris will make two more trips of inspection on state institutions, going to Cincinnati and Cleveland to examine the Longview and Newberg state hospitals. "The institutions I have visited are in good condition," the governor said. "Indeed I never knew them to be in better condition. All the superintendents and subordinate officers are trying to bring about good results. The cottage plan makes for cleanliness in the hospitals, but even in the older institutions, where they have to contend with the difficulty of providing proper ventilation, there has been great improvement."

GAS COMPANY AT GRANVILLE IS SUED BY VILLAGE

CLAIM THAT COMPANY VIOLAT-ED ITS CONTRACT AND SHUT OFF THE FUEL.

Ask for Mandamus to Explain Why
Gas Was Refused—News From the Court House.

The case of Granville village against the Granville Gas and Light company and S. M. Winn, trustee, in which J. R. Davies is the attorney for the village and S. M. Winn the attorney for the light company, occupied the attention of the court Saturday morning. The village of Granville claims that it had a contract at a certain figure and free gas for the power station of the light and water works plants. They claimed that the gas was peremptorily shut off and ask for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the company to show cause why it had shut off the gas from the main power station. It was coupled with a proposition to pay for the surplus gas used in the light and water
stations of the ratepayer ETAINNN franchise. The gas company demurred to the petition on the ground that
plus gas used in the light and water
cause of action. The court held that the demurrer was well taken and granted plaintiff leave to file an amended petition.

Brought on Appeal.
In the case of Joseph Georgetti
and others against Charles Follett,
a well-known attorney of this city,
brought on appeal from a justice's
court to the common pleas court,
Joseph Georgetti has filed a petition.
He says that on the 27th of February, 1907, the defendant promised and agreed with him that if he and the other plaintiffs would purchase
the Bader property, corner of West Main and Fifth streets, he would pay plaintiffs half of the commission he would receive as agent for the sale of the property; that on the 14th of March, 1907, the sale of the property was made by defendant as agent of the other parties to plaintiffs, for which service he received $350.
Plaintiffs say that Follett now refuses to pay plaintiffs one-half of the commission and ask judgment in the sum of $180. Smythe & Smythe, attorneys for the plaintiffs.

National Commander Army and Navy Union

Says: "I Have No Hesitation In Endorsing Peruna As An Efficient Remedy For Catarrh."

J. EDWIN BROWNE.

J. Edwin Browne, National Commander Army and Navy Union of U. S. A., 410 11th street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have no hesitation in endorsing your Peruna as a most efficient cure for catarrh. My own experience and that of many friends who have been benefited by its use recommend it to all persons suffering from that complaint."

Says Peruna Saved His Life.

"Peruna has cured me of catarrh. I can work all day, eat hearty, sleep
well, and my digestion is all right.
I was not able to do a day's work last year. I candidly feel that using your medicine was the means of saving my life. I find it is just what it is recommended to be, and I speak in highest praise of Peruna. I shall recommend it to all my friends."—Alysis A. Nelson, Virgillina, Va.

When any one has catarrh of the head
or throat they know it. Snuffing, sneezing, coughing, spitting, gagging, choking—these are some of the symptoms.

When any one has catarrh of the bronchial tubes they are not quite so apt to recognize their trouble as catarrh, although there are a great many people who begin to appreciate the fact that catarrh of the bronchial tubes is sure to create a cough.

Catarrh produces symptoms according to the place in the body where the catarrh is located. Catarrh deranges the function of any organ.

If the catarrh be in the stomach it produces dyspepsia.

If in the lungs it is apt to set up consumption.

If located in the kidneys or bladder it produces urinary disorders.

If in the bowels it deranges the bowels.
Catarrh medicine, in order to be effective, should be an internal remedy, and not a local application.

Peruna has maintained its reputation
for many years as an internal catarrh remedy. It operates throughout the whole system. It benefits catarrh of the pelvic organs the same as catarrh of the head or throat.

The Family Relies on Peruna.

A. Howitt Nickerson, Capt. U. S.
Army, Adjutant General on General
McCook's staff, writes from the Census
Building, Washington, D. C., as follows:
"It affords me great pleasure to recommend Peruna as a most excellent remedy with many medicinal qualities that assist nature in overcoming the various ills with which the human family is often afflicted, and is always in danger."

"As a general thing, I have been opposed to what are known as patent medicines, but Peruna has long since overcome this feeling. It is now, as it has been for a long time, a well established family medicine with us, upon which we rely to give tired nature substantial restoration."

Terrible Case of Indigestion.
Mr. Donald Robb, Jr., 16 Wrights
Ave., Halifax, Nova Scotia, Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger, Independent Order of Foresters, writes:

"While on a visit to Boston I must have eaten something that did not agree with my stomach, as a terrible case of indigestion followed. Peruna was recommended to me, and after using three bottles I was entirely cured. I therefore recommend Peruna to any one suffering with stomach trouble."

Every Trace of Catarrh Gone.
Mr. James P. Bracken, 610 Tenth Ave., New York City, N. Y., has occupied the office of Water Inspector of New York City, for the past fifteen years. He carries on an extensive plumbing business at 610 10th Ave. He is Past Deputy of Grand Knights of Regna Celia Council, Knights of Columbus, N. Y. He writes as follows:

"For nearly a dozen years catarrh has bothered me in one form or another. I was troubled with nasal catarrh, that had affected my stomach, which troubled me most in the morning. My appetite was poor, and I did not seem to relish my food. Indigestion bothered me at times also. I was advised to take Peruna, and I took it as prescribed for a month when my cure was almost complete. Today there is not a trace of catarrh in my system, and I can say without hesitation that Peruna cured me."

Agreeable and Effective Tonic.

General John Finn, Washington,
D. C., veteran soldier of the civil war,
a prominent Grand Army man and commander of the oldest post in the United States, John A. Rawlins Post No. 1, department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, writes:

"Peruna was recommended to me by many of my associates and I have given it a fair trial. Have found it a most agreeable and effective tonic, pleasant tasting, and leaves one free from the deleterious effects produced by the many nostrums now on the market. I have suffered from catarrhal afflictions
the past winter, and have found Peruna
most beneficial and commend it for what it has done for me."

Relieves Mind and Body.

Mr. G. W. Woodbury, Rogers, Ohio, formerly Captain and Center of the Hiram College Basketball Team,
writes:

"When body and mind alike were weary and refused to work, a few doses of Peruna restored lost strength and invigorated quicker and more permanently than anything I know."

AMUSEMENTS

AT IDLEWILDE CASINO.

Last night at the Casino a large audience witnessed the play "East Lynn," acted in a most pleasing and clever manner by the Grahame stock company. Tonight will end the engagement of the company here. "A Police Alarm" is immensely popular with the Germans. The amateur contest last night was most entertaining. The first prize was won by Master Paul Hawkins, a clever young musician, on the most difficult instrument, the saxophone. Second prize went to Master Damon Tedrick. His clear young voice won the hearts of all. Third prize, Rastus Johnson carried away with that big hit, his mimicry of a crying baby.

The American stock company opens
a two weeks' engagement at the Casino tomorrow with a matinee and evening performance the opening bill will be "The Black Hand," a play entirely new to the patrons of Idle-wilde Casino.

BURGLARS LEFT NEW PADLOCK IN PLACE OF ONE DESTROYED

The creamery at Alexandria was entered last night by burglars, entrance being effected by prying off a padlock. About $1.00 or $5.00 are missing, but nothing else was disturbed.

There is no clue to the perpetrators
of the crime, but a peculiar feature was that the miscreants left a new padlock on the door in place of the one destroyed, and left the key in it.

Injunction Modified.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 10.—In accordance with the agreement made between the state and the Southern railway, by which the license of the latter in Alabama was reinstated, lawyers for the Southern railway appeared before Federal Judge Jones and secured a modification of his injunction heretofore granted against the state, restraining it from enforcing laws while litigation was pending.

There seem to be lots of rich fools
in spite of the old proverb about the fool and his money.

The fellow who prides himself upon being a sharp man may really be a sharper.

PASTOR HAS NEW CODE IN HIS CHURCH

The Rev. George Paul Terrence, rector of Gethsemane church, Marion, formerly of Zanesville, certainly has the courage of his own convictions. At the marriage of his daughter, with each invitation was a card stating, "This church requires that women come into it with covered heads." On the hymn-board was a large card with the very impressive word "Silence" upon it, which kept down the chatter incident to weddings; alas! church weddings in general. The march of Lohengrin was played while the congregation were being seated, but the bride party entered the church to one of the nuptial hymns.

It is refreshing to have the dress parade and operatic element eliminated and the solemnity due to God's house and the sacrament of marriage made prominent.

COURTS UPHOLD CHURCH UNION

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 10.—The supreme court of Georgia handed down a decision holding that the general assembly of the Cumberland church acted within the scope of its constitutional authority when it voted for union of all of the Cumberland Presbyterian churches in the United States, and that the action of that body with reference to church property is to be recognized by civil courts. The decision has the effect of awarding the property of the Cumberland Presbyterian church in Atlanta to that part of the membership which uphold the union of the churches, consummated by the general assembly at Decatur, Ill., last year.

ADVOCATE GIRLS REACH BIG EXPO.

position where new sights and further pleasure awaits.

The girls were perhaps impressed more by Southern hospitality than by any of the many notable things they saw. Everybody whom they met had a kind word, all were courteous, nobody was too busy to offer an explanation or a helpful suggestion. The pleasing southern accent was new to many while the quaint antics of the negroes and the queer colloquialisms of the people caused many a broad smile. The papers here all "took notice" of the Newark-Coshocton party and the people did likewise. As the big tallies and carriages passed about the old town the Virginians took time to look and many were heard to say pleasant things about the appearance and conduct of the party from Ohio.

It was a hot day but nobody minded that. The carriage drivers were old-time colored residents who had been here since "befo' d' wa'" and several of them had vivid recollections of the slave market with which they entertained the young ladies. The drive was all about town—a city built upon seven hills—which in some respects resembles Columbus, Ohio. The city is noted for its numerous monuments, many of which are remarkable specimens. Here may be seen the great Washington monument in Capitol Square, the Stonewall Jackson monument, a gift of Englishmen, monuments to McGuire (Jackson's surgeon), Governor Smith (who was killed with 60 others in a fire here), Henry Clay, General Robert E. Lee, Jefferson Davis, General Stuart, General Wickham, A. P. Hill and Horvitz. Perhaps the most attractive is the huge pyramid of Virginia granite in Hollywood cemetery, nearly 100 feet high and perhaps 30 x 30 base, erected to the memory of the 18,000 Confederate soldiers in the local cemetery. Each year on Decoration Day, a man with great regard to life and limb scales the wall and plants the Southern flag at the summit.

As telegraphed the Advocate Thursday, the day's ride included a visit to St. John's cemetery and church (built in 1741), a church made famous by being the place where Patrick Henry delivered his memorial address on March 20, 1775. The guide, Antonio Graffigna, stepped to the pew where Henry stood and recited the speech with oratorical effect. The girls walked over the old cemetery and read the odd inscriptions upon many of the tombstones.

"Stop, my friends, as you pass by As you are now so once was I. As I am now you soon must be, Prepare yourself to follow me." The man who directed that the foregoing inscription be placed at his grave perhaps never thought some wag would add these lines: "To follow you I'm not content Until I know which way you went." Note the capitalization in the following verse, which is carved upon the slab at the grave of Abraham Shield, who passed away in 1798: "When I was young and in my prime it pleased the Lord to End my Time And took me to a Place of Rest where Jesus Christ did visit it best."

The drive included a visit to the Confederate soldiers home where the old veterans did everything possible to make things pleasant. The horse ridden by General Jackson when he was wounded, has been stuffed and was seen here. Old "Sorrel," occupies a prominent place in the home and the veterans are always ready to tell of the achievements of both the horse and rider. The girls had a peep at Libby Prison site, at the home of Miss Van Lew who during the war sent messages through the lines and who cared for a number of Union soldiers who escaped from the prison. Miss Van Lew, who was postmistress of Richmond under the Grant administration, died here a few years ago but Richmond shed few tears.

The residence section of Richmond is fine. Many mansions there are in the old town and it is noticeable that all of the houses both large and small, are built of bricks. Stone is extensively used, too, but frame dwellings are almost a curiosity here. Richmond has more than 100,000 people, about 40 per cent being colored. The negroes appear to be contented notwithstanding the fact that few of them vote. The fact that voters are required to be able to read and write or own property practically bars them from suffrage. Richmond has a large blotting paper mill, extensive flour mills and tobacco factories, car shops, bottle works, the largest cedar wood factory in the world, and many smaller industries. She has seven railroads, good trolley car service and is growing rapidly. In all directions the city is spreading and the contractors seem to have their hands full. The great Jefferson hotel, one of the finest in the South, is here and all about town may be seen memorials to Major Lewis Ginter, a benefactor of Richmond.

In the afternoon the girls visited new points of interest and while at the White House of the Confederacy—the Jefferson Davis mansion—now used as a museum, had their pictures "took" by a photographer for the Richmond-Times Dispatch, the leading newspaper. The background of the picture is the old Davis house which for years after the war was used for a schoolhouse. Richmond boasts of 95 churches, many of which are masterpieces of architecture.

Before the Advocate's girls arrived one of the papers referred to us as the "Ohio Skidoo Party" from the fact that the number is 23. There are 16 from Newark, 5 from Coshocton and Mr. Doughty of Columbus, making 22. One other person has so far accompanied the party from Columbus, and the paper got the "skidoo" idea from the hotel rooming list mailed here from Washington.

All of the Richmond papers print notices, that from the Times-Dispatch being here reproduced:

"A party of pretty Ohio girls, chaperoned by prominent ladies and gentlemen from the central portion of the 'Buckeye' State, arrived in the city Wednesday night en route to the Jamestown Exposition, and registered at Murphy's."

"The young ladies, who, together in the dining room, constituted at once a beautiful picture, are prize winners in contests conducted by the Newark, O., Advocate and the Coshocton Age, and they are being chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Spencer of Newark, the former being the managing editor of the Advocate."

"Mr. Clark C. Doughty, manager of the Excursion Bureau of Ohio at Columbus, is in personal charge of the party, and has made similar trips to the exposition on many occasions. Mr. Doughty is one of the clerks of the Ohio State Senate, and he and Editor Spencer are both uncompromising Democrats. Although the Senate is Republican, it is the custom in Ohio to give the minority a portion of the offices, and Mr. Doughty being a strong leader for the Democracy in this section, he was given the appointment."

"Mr. Spencer, who is a most pleasant gentleman, apparently about 40 years of age, talked interestingly of the trip from Newark to Richmond, the party having stopped over at Washington on the way. He said the young ladies were all well, had stood the trip splendidly, and were fairly delighted to get into the historic capital of Virginia and of the Confederacy."

They will spend the day in sight-seeing here and will proceed by daylight down the James River to the exposition tomorrow. The will spend Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the exposition and in seeing the sights around Hampton Roads, and will leave for home via Baltimore and Pittsburgh on Tuesday evening, reaching Newark Thursday afternoon.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Spencer and Manager Doughty, and Mrs. H. R. Emery, the chaperon, those in the party are:

"Miss Estella Emery, Newark; Miss Clara E. Bucy, Newark; Miss Anna Stare, Newark; Miss Maude Botts, Newark; Miss Mame Bentz, Newark; Miss Alice L. Young, Newark; Miss Mildred Hays, Utica; Miss Susie G. Davis, Atherton; Miss Florence Madden, Hebron; Miss Hannah Beaver Paskala; Miss Earle Goff, Newark; Miss Cora Dair, Newark; Miss Maggie Taylor, Licking county; Mrs. H. R. Emery; Miss Ethel Stanton, Warsaw; Miss Nellie McCormick, Keene; Miss Minnie Bonham, Miss Minnie Keen, Miss Sue McCarton.

Thursday evening the girls took a stroll up the principal business street, sampled Southern soda and sweets, and then returned to the hotel to the hotel to write to dear ones at home (or elsewhere) and to prepare for the events of today. The girls are now starting to Old Point Comfort, their headquarters during the stay at the Exposition. They are well and happy. They are better acquainted, too, and are all good friends. It is no longer Miss So and So, but Alice and Hannah and Mame, and so on down the list. This does not apply to the chaperones or to the leaders of the party but to the girls themselves. Ohio girls are doing their best to have a good time—and they are surely having it.

GARDEN "SASS"

Draw the Attention of Three Horses and "Right Smart" Was Destroyed.

Martin Thacker, who lives on Jefferson street, near the aqueduct, complained to the mayor this morning that three horses got into his garden last night and destroyed "Right Smart" of garden sass.

He wanted satisfaction and was advised by his honor to take a case to the civil court.
But, anyway, parties must "ake notice that anyone in the future owning stock running at large will be handled by the police department and will be fined according to the city ordinance.

TYPHOID EPIDEMIC NOW CONTROLLED

Coshocton Has Traced the Trouble to a Dairy, and It Was Ordered Discontinued.

The Coshocton papers are taking exceptions to the article published in the Advocate recently about the typhoid fever situation there, and intimate that the Advocate should take care or a sentiment of jealousy will be betrayed for Coshocton.

No, it's not that; this paper only publishes the facts, and while admitting that there are four cases of typhoid fever in Newark, they admit eighteen cases but blame it all on one dairy, and insist that now the epidemic is under control.

Well, that's good, and we hope that our prosperous neighboring city will be fore-armed and not let disease get so wide-spread again in the community. Wide-awake health officers, who show no fear or partiality, is what are needed everywhere over the state.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; hence cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

TODAY'S GAME

Youngstown, O., Aug. 10.—Score in sixth inning, 3 to 1 in favor of Newark.

MEETING OF BALL CLUB DIRECTORS

The directors of the Newark Baseball company held a business meeting in the office of Manager Frank Maurath last evening. A great deal of routine business was transacted including the allowance of a number of bills. Manager Maurath made a report and was followed by a report from Secretary and Treasurer Hopkins showing that the finances of the club were in fair shape. The unfortunate occurrence at Sharon in which Captain Havel and Pitcher Asher had an altercation was discussed, and it was decided to have the directors visit the team at Marion and hold a court of inquiry. Whoever was in the wrong will be punished. A dispatch sent from Sharon states that Captain Havel ordered Asher to throw a ball to a batter in the second inning, but he refused to do so. At the end of the inning Captain Havel reprimanded him and Asher replied with a flow of indecent language. The two mixed before the players could separate them.

RUTLEDGE IN YOUNGSTOWN.

Thomas V. Rutledge, a member of the O. & P. schedule committee, left last evening for Youngstown to look after the interests of the Molders in their doubleheader this afternoon.

JUDE RETURNS TO THE SENATORS

Columbus, Aug. 10.—Buck Servations, who had every chance in the world to make good as an A. A. regular, but didn't, went this morning to join the Youngstown, Ohio-Penn champions, and Frank Jude returns to the Columbus fold. Jude's stay with the Senators may be of short duration as a deal involving him may be swung soon.

NEW MANAGER FOR DAYTON BALL TEAM

Dayton, Aug. 10.—Malachi Kittredge, former manager of the Montreal Eastern League baseball club, was signed today to manage the Dayton team in the Central league.

DOUBLE HEADER AT IDLEWILDE TOMORROW

The Meredith and King Company ball teams of the City League will play a double header Sunday afternoon at Idlewild Park. The first game will be called at 2 o'clock and ladies will be admitted free to both grounds and grand stand.

THE MOLDERS

The games will undoubtedly draw large crowds as there is a great deal of rivalry between the two teams, both of whom are making a hard fight to win the City League pennant, there being a difference of but a small margin in favor of the Merediths. They have been putting up an excellent article of ball and visitors to tomorrow's games can look for a treat.

JAMES DELNEY

James Delney, born in 1826, and said to be the oldest letter carrier in the country, has resigned after 50 years' continuous service in New York.

TOKIO'S BANK CLEARINGS

Tokio's bank clearings last year were $1,750,000,000, an increase of $500,000,000 over 1905.

MELANGE OF SPORT.

The Molders put up a great game at Sharon yesterday. Locke was hit for nine bingles, but he was there in a pinch and they were all for naught.

Bunny Pearce got busy yesterday and smashed one out for a home-run. This makes four homers for Bunny this season.

The Lanks copped nineteen hits off Jack Kennedy at New Castle yesterday. The Molders had a hitting picnic with Jack at Wehrle park on June 26, when they made a single, a three-bagger and four two-baggers in one two hit innings which netted them four runs.

According to a message from Los Angeles last night the promoters of the Gans-Mensie fight have set the fight for August 23 instead of August 16. No official announcement of this fact has been made by the club.

Jake Cross, a wealthy Omaha man, would like to see the Brit-Gans fight without going away from home. He says he will give the boys $10,000 if they will fight in Omaha.

Kid Imhoff is kicking because both Andy Bezenah and Charley Wobst have refused to meet him at 133 pounds. Imhoff says he can get a purse to fight either man at that weight.

The first game of the double-header with the Champs was called at 2 o'clock. The Newark team will leave Youngstown this evening for Marion where they play tomorrow and Monday with Ferd Drumm's Limeburners.

Pearce and Snyder each scored two hits in yesterday's game. Wratten was credited with two sacrifice hits while Schweitzer pilfered two bases, the only ones purloined in the game.

Arlie Latham, old-time diamond star and comedian discarded by the O. & P. as an umpire, has found a berth in the Central league. He worked his first game with that organization Thursday at Canton. President Morton stated that he had sent Latham to the Central. Latham needed the job and needed it badly. The ball player who one time drew a magnificent salary was on his uppers.

Pitcher Nick Maddox last year drafted by Pittsburgh from the P. O. M. farmed out this season to Wheeling, has been recalled. He will join the Pirates August 24.

Nick Nallin was given his unconditional release by Manager East Thursday night. The action of the local manager did not come unexpected to the local fandom, as Nallin—who was considered a brainy and valuable player last season—has not been up to his standard of late, and there are other men on the payroll of the Akron club who can and will put up a good article of ball.

Just as soon as McGraw began congratulating himself upon having McGann back in the game the veteran struck his arm in front of a fast grounder and was hurried back to the bench for a few days.

Manager Lawson of the Reading club, in an interview Friday morning said: "I have not signed Frank Delahanty and George Stovall yet, but I am after them. I have offered them contracts for three years at more salary than they are receiving in the American league. I hope to get them both."

Matty Mathany was in both games Thursday all the time, and made himself solid with every fan who saw the double scrap with Marion. In the first game Matty came to bat three times, and on the last occasion, scored Schwartz and Caffyn with a scorching double to right field. In the second he was up three times and made three clean hits—two long singles and another double. He also tore off a pretty catch of Quinn's long drive to right field in the fourth.

Only two runs in three games, or 25 innings, against 22 runs made by Akron, is the record of the Tip Tops against Marion in the last series now on. Marion made two runs on Wednesday and were shut out the two games Thursday. A total of 31 hits have been made by the swatters of East's aggregation.

Herman Schaefer, the Detroit second baseman, says that any old joke will get a round of applause this year from the Tigers. "As long as you can keep winning everything is heaven-like. It's when you're getting bumped that you feel like giving up baseball, for it's a dog's life then. Everybody has it in for you."

The Molders will arrive home from Marion Monday evening after an absence on the road of two weeks. They are scheduled to play three games with Marion on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, going to Lancaster Friday and Saturday and will play Youngstown at Wehrle park Sunday and Monday. The fans should turn out and give the boys a warm reception on their home-coming Tuesday.

Your Uncle Joseph struck out three men in yesterday's game and walked two. He settled down in the usual places and the boys of three-fame were only able to cross the pan once.

"We are now down to quicksilver and in better shape and with better men than ever before," said H. H. Gibbs, president of the Akron club. "There will be no more changes on the team now that I know of and we can now go after the pennant."

Springfield's Central league leaders failed to put it over on the Cincinnati

LABOR DAY PROCLAMATION IS ISSUED BY GOVERNOR HARRIS

Columbus, Aug. 10.—Having been nearly all of his life one who earned his bread by the sweat of his brow, Governor Harris's first message upon the subject of labor, issued yesterday, in the form of a proclamation for the observance of Labor Day, is interesting because of the thought it contains upon that great subject. It will be observed that the Chief Executive goes back to the farm for his similes and illustrations, relying in the belief of the tiller of the soil that the harvest season is the happiest of the year.

The proclamation reads as follows: "The General Assembly of Ohio has designated the first Monday in September of each year as a legal holiday. In furtherance of the object sought to be attained, I hereby call attention to the fact that Monday, the second day of September, 1907, is to be observed as Labor Day.

"Civilized man has ceased to look upon labor as a curse, but rather regards the useful exercise of mind and body as man's greatest blessing, the nation club yesterday. The Reds won, 3 to 2.

The pennant will never be won by the kind of baseball Toledo has been playing this week. The players appear to think they have the pennant nailed to the pole now. Over-confidence won't get them anything."—Toledo Times.

Tommy Corcoran, the ex-Red shortstop, who was released by New York several days ago, has been offered the management of the Dayton team of the Central league. No answer has yet been received from Corcoran, although it was known when the offer was made that a similar offer had been made to him by the Jersey City team of the Eastern league. This latter offer, however, was for his services for next season, while the offer of the Ohio people was to go into effect at once, as Dayton is now being managed by Catcher Richardson.

Akron is going to start all over, according to L. J. Ritchie in the Akron Beacon-Journal. "Ritchie" has evidently worried enough about the on and off playing of his team.

Manager Lajoie declares he will not trade First Baseman Stovall to Washington. Larry also denies that he made the assertion that Stovall would play no more ball for Cleveland.

Dr. Bailey, no doubt, pleased his many Youngstown friends by his performance Thursday and showed several of his former college mates that he can still pitch good ball.

Angel Speas has not lost his batting eye since getting back into the game. His stick rang out with a triple and a single out of four times up yesterday. He is playing his usual fast fielding game.

Curly Elston is leading the Lancaster team with the stick. He is hitting .331. Locke is the next regular with an average of .245. It is understood that Elston may be drafted by the Toledo American association team, as his work has attracted the attention of Manager Bill Armour.

Walter East is to get $300 if he wins the pennant and not a cent of bonus if he falls short. Since he is not blessed with an abundance of this world's goods, it is not to be doubted that he is trying to win, all the time.

Five out of the last six games pitched by Dr. Bailey have been on the right side of the column. He has won four straight games.

It is said Paddy Green uses a package of tobacco for each game. Stoup is a general favorite with the boys at Sharon. He is a hard worker but luck seemed to be against him in the last few days.

Schwitzer suffered an accident to his foot in the sixth inning when running to first. He and Noah collided and it was like going up against the Ark.

The Chicago National league team has closed negotiations with Nashville for Catcher Hardy of that team. The trade was effected by giving Nashville Catcher Seabough, now with the Montgomery team, and a cash bonus. Hardy was with Sharon last season and was given an unconditional release.

Praise Safer Than Blame. Viscount de Belmont of Brazil was dining in a New York restaurant. Suddenly he put down his knife and fork and uttered an exclamation of approval.

"By Jove, a beautiful woman!" he said in the demonstrative southern way.

"She is my wife," the viscount's companion murmured modestly.

The young man laughed. "Excuse my personal remark," he said, "but it was much better than that of an Oxford friend of mine."

"My friend," the boat coming over, stood in conversation with an elderly man on the promenade deck. Near by a woman sat in a deck chair. My friend, pointing to her, said, with a sneer:

"I wonder if that ugly old woman is actually trying to flirt with me!"

"I don't know," the elderly gentleman answered mildly, "but I can easily find out for you. She's my wife."

Woman's Home Companion.

only means of physical and mental growth and improvement. The happiest man is he who finds joy in his work, and as this truth becomes generally recognized we may expect to find both better work and greater contentment.

"With these thoughts in mind, it is to be hoped that Labor Day will be celebrated as a triumph of achievement, a satisfactory retrospect of a year's work well done, a holiday of pleasure and congratulation among those who come rejoicing bringing in the sheaves."

"I beg to request that all citizens of Ohio comply with the letter and the spirit of the law and unite in the proper observance and this holiday."

"In testimony whereof I have caused to be subscribed my name and hereunto the great seal of the state to be affixed, at Columbus, this ninth day of August, A. D. 1907."

"Carmi A. Thompson,

PLANS FINISHED FOR LABOR DAY

The indications are that the coming Labor Day celebration in Newark will be one of the grandest ever held in the city. The various committees having the matter in charge have been working like beavers for some days, and the arrangements for the affair are rapidly being completed.

The soliciting committee reports that the business men of the city have generously responded to their appeals for aid and that they have already collected a sum of money that looks good to them. MATINEE RACES AT COLUMBUS DRIVING PARK

At the matinee races at Columbus yesterday afternoon great interest prevailed over the special trot, in which John Taylor was nosed out by The Roman, the latter taking two straight heats. In the first heat after three-quarters of an hour lost time in getting started the starter finally let them go and as the wire was passed John Taylor broke, throwing him back and out of the lead, finishing third, with The Roman and Morone fighting it out for first place. The Roman being the victor. The second heat was a great battle from start to finish between The Roman and John Taylor. It was a great finish with the former about a head to the good.

Many of the spectators thought that John Taylor was the winner, but the judges decided on The Roman.

In the class A trot Nina F took the race in straight heats, with McShadd and Rainforth tied for second.

The class B pace went to John D., who won in easy fashion in two heats. Joe B took second.

The class B trot with only two entries was won by Idlewild.

GUNNERY ALMOST PERFECT

Statement Given Out in Response to Boastful Claims of the Men of Foreign Navies — The Good Records Made by Some of the American Sailors.

Washington, Aug. 10. — Heretofore the navy department has not been in the habit of giving out news regarding the gunnery of the men of the United States navy for fear of giving foreign nations too much information. It was felt that the publication of a good record made by our men would only serve to stimulate the gunners of other nations to better their own performances, which in turn

Consular Changes.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Norman Hutchison of California, secretary of legation at Stockholm, Sweden, has been transferred to be secretary of the American legation at Bucharest, Roumania, to fill the vacancy which has existed since the retirement of Montgomery Schuyler, Jr., of New York. James D. Bailey of Kentucky, at present secretary of legation at San Jose, Costa Rica, has been transferred to a similar position at Stockholm, to succeed Mr. Hutchison.

In all the various suggestions of the referendum in relation to schemes of government involving large expenditures of public money, nothing is said as to the rights of the taxpayers in passing judgment upon the projects.

In business affairs, such matters are referred to the stockholders of the corporations interested, and only stockholders may pass upon them. In a municipal community, the stockholders are the taxpayers. And in all matters involving the expenditure of their money which it may be considered advisable to submit to the test of a public ballot their interests should be considered in the voting. To permit a great army of non-taxpayers to participate in this expression of opinion, and possibly to outweigh, by their votes, the deliberate judgment of those who have the greatest interest at stake—the taxpayers—cannot be looked upon as an act of justice.

In a community where suffrage is so cheap, where the irresponsible, uninterested vote is large, a referendum system which exposes the interests of the taxpayers to the votes of those who have absolutely no financial interest in government is absolutely indefensible. And yet, when these matters are under consideration, there are few to raise their voices in favor of those who make government possible by providing the money for its maintenance.

"Taxation without representation" was one of the evils and oppressions that led to the American revolution and the freedom of the American colonies from the rule of the mother country. Taxation imposed by the overwhelming vote of the untaxed would be an evil just as great.—Wilmington (Del.) Every Evening.

TAXING CREDITS.

In his remarks at the state tax commission meeting, Mr. Derthick, (Master of the Ohio State Grange), alluded to the fact, that at Mt. Vernon and Bellefontaine the savings bank deposits earned 3 per cent and the tax rate was 4. A tax system that requires such a payment is grievously unjust. A great deal of this business is not so bad, but it is bad enough to turn the state into a community of law violators and false swearers.

It is a calamity that this abuse should remain another year. The harm done in one year will outweigh all the benefit of the taxation for a century. Laws that do not conduce to honor and justice are uncivilized and unchristian.

Mr. Chamberlain, of The Ohio Farmer, spoke to some effect on the tax proposition. He made a number of excellent suggestions, and upon the matter now referred to, he said: "Amend the constitution to permit levying a tax of one-quarter or one-half of 1 per cent on the value of all evidences of indebtedness and require all such evidences to be listed to be legal." There is a sensible suggestion, and it has been tried in other states with success.

More money than the present system does, and it will save the state from disgracing itself. The people are not aware of the enormity of the offense against the true principles of taxation and legislation now being perpetrated under the present system. Of all devices planned against the prosperity of a people, that which aims at their integrity is the most fatal.—Ohio State Journal.

PLAN TO GUARD PUBLIC CASH.

C. B. Kegley, master of the Washington State Grange, is calling special attention to a movement started at the last session of the grange to secure a uniform and accurate accounting of the collection and expenditure of all public money.

The campaign is designed to be general, and it is expected that the question will become a leading issue all over the United States in the next two years. Its object is to reduce public business to the same basis of careful conduct as private enterprise. An amendment to the state constitution will be necessary. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, All money collected from the people by the local, state and national governments by taxation and other means should be expended and accounted for with as much care and thrift as all good citizens expend and account for their private incomes:

"Be it resolved, That the following provision on the subject of uniform public accounting be made a part of the constitution of the state of Washington, and that the members of all local granges and all good citizens generally throughout the state be and are hereby requested and urged to interest themselves in securing this result:

"The legislature shall require by all money collected by taxation or by fees, fines and public charges of every kind to be accounted for by a system of accounting that shall be uniform for each class of accounts, state or local, which shall be prescribed and audited by authority of the state.—Spokane (Washington) Press, June 12, 1907.

INEQUALITY UNDER A UNIFORM TAX RATE.

Money, bonds, mortgages and other securities, if assessed at all, must be assessed at their full value. Real estate is assessed at not more than 60 per cent of full value. When the rate is 2½ per cent this means that every $1,000 in money, etc., must pay a tax of $22.50, and every $1,000 in real estate will pay a tax of only $15, thus making the burden on money, etc., 50 per cent more than on real estate. This is why tax laws are evaded.

WELL DESERVED.

The Praise That Comes From Thankful Newark People.

One kidney remedy never fails. Newark people rely upon it.

That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills.

Newark testimony proves it always reliable.

Milton Smith, engineer on the B. & O. railroad, and living at 328 E. Main street, Newark, O., says:

"Doan's Kidney Pills have been a family remedy with us and it has never failed in a single case. My trouble was kidney complaint and backache, brought on, I think, by the jarring of the engine. It affected me in the small of the back and every throb of the engine seemed to make the pain almost unbearable. The trouble was so deep seated that it defied all my efforts to cure it. After trying many different preparations in vain a friend who had been cured of similar troubles by Doan's Kidney Pills advised me to try them and I got a box at Crayton's drug store. The treatment with Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of all the trouble. My wife also used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and kidney trouble and found a quick and complete cure. I know of many railroad men who have used this remedy for the same trouble that afflicted me, and in every case that I have heard of they have done the same good work."

MAY APPLES ARE PERFECT THIS YEAR

The May apple while not a standard fruit for this vicinity, and which on account of the climate rarely reaches perfection, is this year perfect, and of a size and flavor that it rarely attains. Its habitat is in the deep woods and it favors the small, sunny patches where the sun's rays may possibly reach, and while the plant is dying the fruit ripens.

There is no wild fruit as palatable as the May apple, in its perfection, and this is one of the few years that lovers of the wood's fruits, can gather them.

Mr. Diego said that the president remarked that the present system of government in Porto Rico is but temporary, and that if congress would do all that he wished Porto Rico would have little if any complaint.

PRIVATE BUILT BOAT
Makes a Better Speed Record Than Government One.

Washington, Aug. 10.—After a year of speculation and conflicting claims, the relative speed of the big battleships Connecticut and Louisiana has been finally and formally established, and on the face of the returns the private-built boat Louisiana appears to have slightly the better record. Her speed record, established a year ago, is given by the bureau of steam engineering as 18.23 knots, made on a four-hours' continuous test, with her propellers making 127.68 revolutions per minute. The Connecticut's trial was made during the night and completed at day on the run from Rockland, Me., to Provincetown, Mass., and the result is disclosed in the following telegram received at the navy department from Captain Clover, the president of the trial board: "The Connecticut finished very successful four-hours' trial at 4:30 a. m.; average speed, 18.73 knots."

The Connecticut and Louisiana are sister ships, the former built at the New York navy yard and the latter by the Newport News Shipbuilding company. At the navy yard it is pointed out that the Connecticut on this trial was carrying 350 tons more weight than was the Louisiana on her trial, which caused her to draw five inches more water. Therefore it is asserted that, if allowances are made for these conditions, the Connecticut's performance is really superior. On the other hand, the private shipbuilders assert that the fact that the Louisiana had her trial when the ship was brand new, while the Connecticut had a year's shaking down, confirms the superiority in speed of the former boat.

RAILROADS ENJOINED
By Paying Brick Manufacturers From the New Rates.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10.—As the result of an injunction suit entered in the United States circuit court by the National Paying Brick Manufacturers' association against the Central Freight association lines, the manufacturers' association expects to prevent the new rates authorized by Central Freight association from going into effect Aug. 15 for the Ohio manufacturers, and Sept. 15 for brick manufacturers of other states. The brickmakers' association represents 75 per cent of the brick manufacturers in the country. The lines which are sought to be enjoined are the Pennsylvania railroad, Baltimore & Ohio, Pittsburg & Lake Erie, Pennsylvania company, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, and others. It is set forth that the straight rate fixed for all kinds of brick is unfair, and discrimination is alleged.

BIG CENTENNIAL JUBILEE WOULD MARK THE DATE

SIX COUNTIES INCLUDING LICKING, WILL BE 100 YEARS OLD NEXT YEAR.

'Tis Suggested to Hold a Week's Celebration in Honor of Big Event
—Proposed Plan.

There are six counties in Ohio that will be one hundred years old in 1908, and it has been suggested that these counties get together and have a grand jubilee in honor of the event. It has been suggested that one of the counties start the ball rolling on Monday of some future week, go it all day and finish up at night with a big time, and then one of the other counties take up the celebration and so on until the week shall have been absorbed, making up the six. The counties that will charge on the century line in 1908 are Delaware, named for the Indians; Licking, named after its principal river, Licking, by the white, but called Pataskala by the Indians; Knox, named after Henry Knox, of Massachusetts, Washington's first secretary of war; Preble, named after Captain Isaac Preble, a naval officer of the Revolution and Tripolitan wars; Stark, named in honor of Gen. John Stark, the hero of Bennington; Tuscarawas, named after an Indian tribe and signifies "open mouth." These six counties will be 100 years old before the close of the year 1908.

It has been suggested that if we could fix it up so that we could celebrate the centennial during the same week, commencing in one of the towns of a certain county on Monday and winding up in the last of the six counties on Saturday, that it would be a good idea. Each county would have something to exhibit; something to tell about the wonderful changes wrought in every way since the legislature first set us up in housekeeping separately or for a time in company with our nearest neighbor. Their first cabin homes in the wild woods; clearing up their farms; plowing around the stumps and among the roots; their first mills, how they traveled from one place to another, their log school houses to reach which much of the way was passed between the blazed trees; their churches; their markets, their troubles with the Indians and wild beasts, their early customs, etc. The difference between 1808 and 1908 is very great and a celebration of much interest and profit could be had.

I fully believe Electric Bitters will cure me permanently for it has already stopped the liver and bladder complications which have troubled me for years." Guaranteed at F. D. Hall's drug store. NEW GAS ENGINE INVENTED BY CAMP

Saving of Fuel Is Its Chief Advantage and Is Said to Be Big Success.

Mr. D. F. Camp, who is at present employed by the Pennsylvania railroad as an engineer on one of its steam shovels, is showing his friends a gas engine built by himself that embodies many new features. It runs smoothly and the innovations are close regulation of the gas or gasoline to the explosion chamber, thus using the fuel to a high point of economy.

Almost every unit of force of the gas being utilized and it is believed by all that have seen it running that it is a device that will save considerable expense over the methods now in vogue. The cylinder is air-cooled which is a radical departure from the ordinary in stationary engines of this type, and as Mr. Camp is a practical man, having had long experience in handling machinery, it is very likely that he has developed something that is out of the ordinary, and he hopes to place his improvement with manufacturers of gas engines soon.

John P. Rideout, of Lewiston, Me., aged 75, is a veteran master builder. He claims to have cut 100 ship frames and built 52 vessels; they were from one ton to 1,500 tons. The largest—the Sea King—was 1,500 tons

With Mrs. Kenworthy's Assistance A Summer Resort Story--By Paschal H. Coggins

"My dear, isn't this scheme of yours a little bit--well--just a trifle courageous, as one might say?" As he spoke, Mr. Kenworthy closed the file blade of his knife with an audible snap, and thrust the knife itself deep into his left-hand trousers' pocket, where he jingled it ostentatiously among the keys and loose coins which constituted the earlier deposit. He did not, however, turn away from the window, and the demonstration was so thoroughly characteristic of Mrs. Kenworthy grasped the situation at once.

That lady, having by this time adjusted her hair pretty much to her liking, restored the rouged brush and comb to the bureau with a gentleness of movement that threw the recent pocket-knife vulgarity into bold relief. Then, with the inevitably postscript glance into the mirror, and two or three butter-pat touches of her palms to her temples, she seated herself to await the hotel dinner-bell, and incidentally to administer the necessary cannibalistic discipline.

"By courageous you mean impertinent, of course. No, sir, it is not."

"But suppose they see right through it?"

"Now, Martin, don't be absurd. I propose to invite a lonely old gentleman to join us in an afternoon's ride, and immediately you suspect one of those gunpowder plots, or something of that sort. Why is it, Martin, you find it so hard to accept any of my plans for just what they appear to be?"

"Instead of what they really are?"

"I didn't mean that. You know I didn't."

"Perhaps not, but if I fully grasp the proposition, there's a certain amount of what theatrical people call stage business connected with your invitation to the lonely old gentleman, which somehow mars the simplicity of the situation. I am to have the carriage at the door at the exact moment when Mr. Lyon will have finished his dinner and strolled out on the piazza. Ten minutes later--"

"Wouldn't do at all," interrupted Mrs. Kenworthy promptly. "But if you find it burdensome to order the carriage, I suppose the matter can be arranged at the desk."

"Not in the least, my dear. It's not the act, but the manner of the act that impresses my imagination. The young people, I think you said, have a way of lingering at the table ten minutes or so after Mr. Lyon has departed."

"If they didn't, they'd never have a minute they could call their own. Why, the way those three people tag around together--"

"Then," continued her husband, untouched by the rising tide of indignation, "suddenly and quite spontaneously you are to press the old gentleman to take the vacant seat in our carriage. I think you warned me against mentioning the probable duration of our ride, at least until we are well under way."

"If it will do you the least bit of good, you can just stand on the porch and shout out the whole itinerary--Water Gap, Buttermill Falls, and all the rest--like the trainmen in the big railway depots. I'd really like to hear you, Martin, aren't you?"

"Without committing myself upon this delicate point, Mr. Kenworthy strolled over towards his wife's chair, and continued with increasing earnestness:

"Now, see here, Eleanor, there's a serious side to all this, and I doubt whether it ever occurs to you. Suppose you should actually be the means of bringing about an engagement between these two young people, and events should prove that they are really not at all adapted to each other. You see it involves a considerable degree of moral responsibility."

"Or, suppose they're just exactly made for each other," retorted his wife.

"How, in the name of all that's reasonable, will they ever reach the understanding God Almighty intended, with their peevish old man always treading on their heels? I think they're wonderfully suited to each other, and my guess is every bit as good as yours."

"But, my dear, it's a hardly one of those affairs in which a person should be guided by a mere guess."

"Then, why on earth did you begin guessing? You'd be quick enough to help a young fellow in a business way; but here, when you have the chance to smooth the path for these two immortal young souls, why, just because it's what people call a love affair, you begin to suppose this and suppose that, and all merely on an excuse of being cautious?"

"My dear, I'd rather a thousand times be called that terrible thing, a busybody, than just to go drifting through life like a dumb animal, with no thought for the people around me."

"Do you know, my love, that it has once or twice occurred to me that your lucidity of thought was in danger of being marred by the exuberance of your expression?"

"Why don't you tell me right out that I talk nonsense? It would sound rather coarse, but you might as well say what you mean."

"Not at all, not at all," he protested hastily. "Ah! there goes the curtain--I mean the veil!" As the dinner-bell changed out through the hall below.

Notwithstanding his gibes and protests, Mrs. Kenworthy felt reasonably confident of her husband's support in the little matrimonial flank movement just about to be executed. His occasional eccentricities of speech, intended, doubtless, to demonstrate the independence of the masculine mind, and his constant attention, but upon the whole, they were not to be taken too seriously. As husbands go, she regarded him as quite satisfactory, and her little bursts of impatience had rather more of design than anger in them. When, therefore, towards the conclusion of the meal, she glanced at the bill of fare and declined brown betty and berry pie for both, she was no wise surprised that he not only acknowledged her authority, but instantly recognized his own cue.

Ten minutes later, with Mr. Kenworthy seated by the driver, the carriage drew up before the hotel porch. Mr. Lyon, as per the hand of destiny, was there, and Mrs. Kenworthy was in the act of giving her invitation. The zeal of a sudden inspiration was in her face, and Mr. Lyon, probably from the impulse of courtesy, halted in his declination. Instantly she construed his hesitation into assent, and the old gentleman never recovered his lost ground. With a single furtive glance back towards the dining-room, he followed his captor down the steps and into the carriage.

"IT WAS ALL TOO BAD MY DEAR, AND I KNOW EXACTLY HOW YOU MUST FEEL!"

"My dear, I've just induced Mr. Lyon to join us. Only think he has been here four whole days, and, actually, he has never seen the Gap."

"It's really worth seeing," said Mr. Kenworthy, with a touch of enthusiasm. Then, moved doubtless by the mere impulse of perversity, he added, "Couldn't we prevail upon Miss Lyon and her friend to go with us? We're in no hurry to get off, and a bit of a squeeze makes this sort of a ride all the merrier."

He did not look at Mrs. Kenworthy while he was speaking, but he felt confident that she was looking at him. Before that lady could, or at least before she did, second the amended invitation, Mr. Lyon came to her relief.

"I don't know how it is, Kenworthy, but young people nowadays don't seem to have a mite of curiosity about natural scenery. Why, when I was a youngster, I rode thirty miles in a stage to see the Mammoth Cave, and, really, I don't believe my daughter'd ride three."

To Mrs. Kenworthy's mind this designation was conclusive; a word from her to the driver and the carriage was under way almost before the old gentleman had finished his reflections.

They had reached the turn in the road and begun to ascend the hill before anything more was said. Then Mrs. Kenworthy reached forward gently, and, with the air of one conferring a favor, deposited a rather cumbersome bundle of wraps in her husband's lap.

"My dear, just take these. I shall not need them until nearly sundown, and possibly not at all. And here's Mr. Lyon's overcoat. Oh, really, Mr. Lyon, you must. There's lots of room in front there, and this back seat certainly is a bit stuffy. There, Martin, just lay it across the others and keep your hand on it. Now, don't forget yourself and let them dangle out against the wheel."

The look of stolid sweetness with which the head of the Kenworthy household received this final straw upon the back of the afternoon's comfort could only be fairly compared to one of Sir Thomas Lawrence's "Portraits of a Gentleman." If understood, it was now "doing perfectly."

For his late overt act of domestic treason, but the knowledge was no antidote to the fact. At the proper time Mr. Lyon was duly impressed with the grandeur of the mighty Delaware as it forces its way through the reluctant mountains to the sea. The Buttermill Falls were found all that the most landlordingly imagination had painted them; and natural scenery, as an institution, was voted a complete success.

There was much stopping to enjoy distant outlooks, and the driver was pumped quite dry of geographical knowledge and local legend. Several times the entire party dismounted to climb some promising ledge of rocks or to investigate a nearby spring whose music had caught Mrs. Kenworthy's always alert ears. At that lady's insistence the driver even started towards Mosher's Knob, but as a visit to that proud eminence is usually reckoned as good--or bad--for a half-day at least, she countermanded the order in time to land the party upon the hotel steps barely late for supper.

"There, sir," she exclaimed, as she removed her bonnet and readjusted the stray hairpins in the privacy of their own room, "we've given those young people four hours of freedom, and Mr. Lyon an afternoon of unalloyed pleasure. It's precious little, though, that they're indebted to you."

"You're perfectly right," responded her disgusted spouse, as he tossed the last of the wraps on the most inaccessible corner of the bed. "I tell you, Eleanor, if the freedom, as you call it, of that pair of cupids depends upon my ever again taking part in this sort of a game of knock-down and drag-out, they'll die in chains. I'm done."

"Martin, you're a moral coward. Why, in the name of all that's right, shouldn't we help these young people just as you've helped many a friend of your own in time of need? The only difference is--"

"That this thing is just exactly none of our business," interrupted her husband vigorously.

"Well, you needn't alarm the house over it," replied Mrs. Kenworthy, in a voice so exceedingly gentle as once more to convict her husband of gross indecorum. Then she paused to recover from the shock, and incidentally to emphasize the rudeness of the interruption.

"You forget," she added a moment later, "that, after all, the injunction, 'Mind your own business,' is not one of the Ten Commandments. It is only a maxim of convenience, to be remembered or forgotten as the occasion may require."

There was something so distinctly feminine in the manner of this rebuke, and so undeniably masculine in the final bit of logic, that, on the instant, Mr. Kenworthy experienced somewhat of the sensation which might come to a man suddenly confronted by two opponents when only one was expected. Then an element of amused admiration began to mingle with his emotions, and without further warning he lapsed into good nature.

"My dear," he petitioned meekly, "will you just give me a touch of this whisk, and let's go down to our victuals. This intense moral strain makes me hungry."

And five minutes later, with no sign of the late breeze, they were comfortably seated at the table, and had ordered their suppers.

"I wonder why Mr. Lyon hasn't come down. The young people have doubtless already--why, Martin, what's the matter?"

Her husband, with napkin half-unfolded and lips puckered, was staring straight over her shoulder. For an instant he made no reply. Then completing the operation of the napkin, he seized his fork and leaned forward to spear a pickle, which he didn't want.

"My dear," he whispered with suppressed excitement, "I'm afraid you and I have just received a cold shake."

"Martin, don't use such dreadful slang. Do you mean to say that Mr. Lyon has chosen another table?"

"That's what I was trying to say. They've retreated as far as possible without actually invading the kitchen. And, moreover, my love, your experiment seems to have resulted seriously to one of the parties concerned at least. The young man is not in sight--probably in the doctor's hands--and, unless my eyes deceive me, Clarissa has been in tears."

"Her name is Grace, not Clarissa." The opportune arrival of the waitress with supper put a check upon their conversation, and gave Mrs. Kenworthy time to analyze the new situation.

"Martin, they've quarreled," she announced, with the air of a prophetess, when the coast was once more clear. "And how much better it is," she burst out with new enthusiasm, "that it should happen now, instead of being suppressed or evaded, to come all the harder at last. Is she looking this way?"

"Well, yes, only she doesn't seem to see us."

"Poor child," responded Mrs. Kenworthy compassionately, "she'll feel ever so much better when we've had half an hour's confidential talk. I'll soon get to the bottom of the trouble."

"I suspect, my dear," interpolated her husband between bites, "that that's just about where you are, to begin with."

"For goodness' sake, Martin, stop. If you can't be serious, at least you need not be idiotic."

"All right, Eleanor, only don't forget my position. I'm definitely and permanently out of the game."

Mrs. Kenworthy received this final assurance in reverential silence, and for the next few minutes the couple outwardly, at least, devoted themselves to the meal. Their respite, however, was of but short duration.

"By George! Here they come!"

"For Heaven's sake, Martin, be calm, and leave the whole thing to me. Don't ask any questions, and don't look so desperately excited," exclaimed Mrs. Kenworthy all in one breath.

A moment later Mr. Lyon had paused by their table, and, albeit under rather obvious embarrassment, was expressing the hope that Mrs. Kenworthy was not unduly fatigued after her long ride.

With the very slightest of recognitions, Miss Lyon was pursuing her way to the door, when the elder lady deftly headed her off.

"It was all too bad, my dear, and I know just how you must feel. I have something to say to you right after supper."

These words were whispered with a depth of emotion that gave to their very vagueness the semblance of an added virtue. They seemed to leave the choice of disasters entirely to the girl, their sympathy attaching with undiminished force to whatever chance was to be her greatest woe. Unfortunately, however, the recipient was in no mood to make the application. She attempted to say something coherent--possibly something polite--but the effort culminated in a sound very like a sob and precipitate retreat towards the door.

"Grace doesn't seem to be quite herself this evening," explained her father, as he watched her for a moment with evident perplexity, and then slowly followed her from the room.

Mr. Kenworthy was entirely sincere in proclaiming his withdrawal from his wife's scheme of matrimonial philanthropy. Nevertheless, ten minutes after he had left the table, by some touch of feminine legerdemain, he found himself seated down by the Rockers, while Mrs. Kenworthy was conducting the interview of consolation in a secluded corner of the hotel porch. Under the influence of solitude and their cigars, however, the two men were soon doing very well indeed. From a leisurely discussion of the Keeley motor, they drifted out through theosophy into Pennsylvania politics. When, finally, they were awakened to the flight of time, it was by the vicious tone of the clock in the hotel office.

"When? Nine o'clock. Why, they must be through by this time."

This was the first public recognition of the fact that "they" were supposed to be doing anything in particular, and it was a clear bit of inadvertence upon Mr. Lyon's part. There was a moment of odd embarrassment, and then both men burst out laughing.

"You have no daughter, I believe," remarked Mr. Lyon.

"No, only a wife," responded the other promptly.

"Well, something or other has gone wrong with Grace to-day, and I can't make it out. I've half imagined it was that ride of ours, but Grace is usually reasonable enough."

There was a moment or two of contemplative silence, and then, moved by the candor of the old gentleman's speech, Mr. Kenworthy broke the ice.

"I'm afraid, Mr. Lyon, after all, there's only one way to deal with these love affairs."

"Love affairs?" echoed the other slowly, and in a tone of utter bewilderment. "Do you mean that you suspect Grace and Ed Thrane are in love?"

It was Mr. Kenworthy's turn to be surprised, but he had already gone too far to retreat.

"Mrs. Kenworthy says so, and I've never known of her making a mistake in that department. Besides, how else would you account for their quarreling?"

"Oh, you're both mistaken," responded the other, with reviving confidence. "Why, I've known her ever since his knickerbocker days. He and Grace have been friends--just like boy and girl together, you know--for more than a dozen years."

Mr. Kenworthy withdrew his cigar and whistled reflectively before he replied:

"Ah, but that sort of friendship has a wonderful way of changing into something else all in the twinkling of an eye. You see, Mr. Lyon, you and I have been out of the game so long that we've sort of forgotten the rules. Take my advice, and consider the young fellow seriously. You'll excuse my freedom."

"Oh, certainly, certainly, only I think you're wrong. Why haven't they talked to me about it?"

"Oh, don't misunderstand me. I don't suppose matters have quite reached that point. Mrs. Kenworthy didn't say that. But they're in love with each other, and getting ready to be, and you must be prepared for the--for the--best."

"I never once thought of Ed as a possible son-in-law," responded Mr. Lyon, the surprise still lingering in the tone of his voice. "There's nothing in the world against him. He's as steady as clockwork, and I knew his father for twenty years. The thing seems sort of strange and impossible to me, but I'd really have no grounds for objecting--not if he and Grace really take each other seriously."

The two men arose and wandered slowly back to the house. At the foot of the porch steps they loitered a moment to finish their cigars and brace themselves for whatever greetings might await them up-stairs.

Mr. Kenworthy found his wife swaying gently to and fro in the rheumatic little rocking-chair, deep in the disposition of the brush. To this good lady, in the more trying moments of life, the hair-brush represented all that the bottle, the cards, and the fumes of burning tobacco mean to coarser souls. She had not lighted the lamp, and there was something ominous in the electrical phenomenon which attended every sweep of her brush.

"Well, my dear, how is it?"

The interrogation point which went with this inquiry was extra sharp, but it by no means startled the lady in the rocking-chair into precipitate speech. Her husband, who was exploring the general obscurity of the room in search of the other chair, had given up the quest and perched himself upon the edge of the bed before she spoke.

"How in the world should I guess what was going on in their hollow little minds?"

This observation seemed rather to constitute a link in the chain of Mrs. Kenworthy's mental reflections than to belong to any outward conversation.

"I'm afraid, my dear," remarked her husband after a moment of dubious silence, "that I've somehow lost the thread of the narrative. I assume that you refer to those same two immortal young souls."

"Martin Kenworthy, I never in all my life saw a person who could select such wretchedly inopportune occasions for his witticisms. I suppose Mr. Lyon has told you about the middle we've all gotten into?"

"He admitted that Grace isn't in her usual good spirits, but his information doesn't seem to be quite up to date. How did the young people happen to quarrel?"

The brush ceased its function and rested idly in Mrs. Kenworthy's lap, and when she spoke, it was with something less than her customary assurance.

"Why, you see, Martin, they didn't really quarrel at all. She's the most unreasonable creature I ever met. Martin, she called me a--a--Jonah. Of course she got it from that Thrane fellow, but just the same, it was exceedingly unkind. And Jonah was a man, and it was a very, very rude comparison."

Mr. Kenworthy hastened to the rescue.

"Oh, bless you, that's nothing. Why, among men we'd consider it quite a compliment. That Jonah must have been a chap of most amazing self-possession. But what was it broke down, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all too absurd," went on Mrs. Kenworthy, recovering confidence with her rising indignation. "It seems that Grace and this Thrane are already engaged, only he's never had a perfectly convenient chance to speak to her father. There are a lot of clerks around the old gentleman in his office and a sharp-eyed housekeeper at home. Did you ever hear such a flimsy excuse?"

"Well, it does sound a little out of the usual," admitted Mr. Kenworthy. "Most of the youngsters that I know would ring him up on the long-distance phone, and settle the whole business in five minutes at a total cost of twenty-five cents. But I'm afraid I don't yet grasp the full extent of the disaster."

"In the first place, according to Grace, it required no end of management to induce her father to spend a week up here instead of going right down to Martha's Vineyard as usual. You see he had to be kept within easy reach of Philadelphia, because her father couldn't possibly get off for more than two or three days. It seems he was entitled to two weeks' summer vacation, but somehow or other he took it last winter. And that shows just what a shiftless sort of a person he must be, too. They almost despaired of his getting away at all, and it was by something like a miracle that he finally succeeded. She burst into tears while she was telling me, and I have forgotten what dreadful thing would happen if he should fail to be at his desk by eight o'clock to-morrow morning."

"Well, he came."

"Yes, he managed to get here. Then it was all arranged between the pair that Edward should have the all-important interview with Mr. Lyon to-day just after dinner."

"Just after dinner? Oh, I begin to see. They were going on the theory, I suppose, that men and anacondas are most easily managed immediately after a big feed."

"Now, Martin, don't. The young man absolutely had to start back by the 4.17 train this afternoon, and now--now she blames me for it. If I'd done the least thing out of the way, I'd feel dreadfully let down, but I haven't."

Mr. Kenworthy struck a match on the sole of his shoe and lighted the lamp. Then he turned and looked at Mrs. Kenworthy.

"Mrs. Kenworthy, speaking now in the privacy of domestic confidence, don't you think this would have been a perfectly elegant case to have let alone?"

There was just a suggestion of triumph in his voice, and it by no means escaped the ear of his hearer.

"No, sir, I don't. I did perfectly right, and I shall not worry myself over somebody else's stupidity."

ing side-tracked or detained by a wash-out on the line! If Thrane had gotten hold of the old gentleman for five minutes all would have been over. I'm morally sure of that from our conversation this evening. But now a kindly Providence, gently prodded by yourself, has intervened and given the young fellow another chance. He may have his salary reduced, or catch the measles, or be diverted by a prettier girl. Any one of a thousand things may happen to give him time for further reflection."

Mrs. Kenworthy suppressed the remark which arose to her lips. Instead, she gazed at her spouse a moment in grin flence.

"Martin, dear, you really ought not to indulge in general conversation after half-past nine o'clock at night. You miss your sleep dreadfully. Would you mind getting down on your knees and just loosening the three top buttons of my shoes? Now that you have attended to that most delicate of details, breaking the news to the unapproachable parent, I think we may trust the rest to Mr. Lyon, himself. Under certain limitations the male parent may be depended upon to do his duty. Thank you, I can manage the other buttons myself. My love, how you men do detect anything like matchmaking, to be sure."

"The late Senator Fugh, of Alabama," said a Mobile man. "He had the charms of the country overrated."

"He preferred the city to the country. He used to tell how, one June day, he met a friend who had taken a house for the summer months outside New York somewhere."

"I suppose you revel in fresh eggs and vegetables out there, eh?" said Senator Fugh.

"Yes," said the New York man, "why, would you believe it, we can get all those things at Scraggs Four corners almost as cheap as we did in town."

Girl's Blouse Costume

THE girls of to-day are blessed in many ways, but in none more truly than in the freedom allowed and in the sensible clothing designed for their use. Such a costume as this one means the ability to romp, to tumble and to play with perfect comfort without any hampering considerations of clothing and consequently contributes much both to health and to happiness. In the illustration it is made of a pretty Scotch linen with collar and cuffs of white linen, but percales and chambrays linen and all similar sturdy materials of the sort are appropriate for the washable frocks while the dress also would be found satisfactory in serge or light weight flannel. Indeed, these materials are greatly used for the seashore and the mountains and also are admirable for the general frock of cooler weather.

The costume is made with the blouse, skirt, bloomers and under waist. The skirt is made straight and in one piece and can be either plaited or gathered at the upper edge, while it is joined to the under waist and closed at the back. The blouse is separate and is finished with a roll-over collar at the front and with a shirt waist plait and cuffs, and there is a convenient pocket arranged on the left front. The bloomers are comfortably but not over full and are gathered and finished with straight bands, the closing being made at the sides.

The quantity of material required for the medium size (10 years) is 6 1/2 yards 27, 5 1/2 yards 32 or 4 yards 44 inches wide with 1/4 yard 36 inches wide for collar and cuffs and 1/4 yard 36 inches wide for the under waist.

The pattern 5705 is cut in sizes for girls of 6, 8, 10 and 12 years of age. Patterns will be sent to any address on receipt of ten cents each by Marjorie Dane, 44 East Twenty-third Street, New York City.

To avoid delay, do not fail to state size of pattern desired, and be sure to write your name and address plainly.

Told by Famous Men

HAIRMAN Knapp of the Interstate Commerce Commission, told in New York the other day a French railway story.

"A traffic manager," he said, "came to the president of the line and explained disconsolately:

"We are having no end of trouble with the public, sir, about those old dark blue cars. Everybody says they bump so lightly blue in comparison with the new light blue ones, which, of course, run very smooth."

"Hump," said the president; "we must attend to this matter at once. Have all the old cars painted light blue immediately."

Gov. Folk's Paint Story

Gov. Folk of Missouri said of a proposed law:

"This law, I fear, would bear too hard on certain classes. To some people it would be a convenience. To others it would be a cruelty. Thus it is like the luminous paint story: 'This new invention of luminous paint,' said a young father, 'is going to be an excellent thing in growing families.'

"How so," asked a friend. "Why," said the young father, 'you just touch up the baby's face with it before retiring, and then you can see to give him his bottle without making a light.'

Love and Success

"When universal peace is finally established," said Alfred H. Love, the president of the Universal Peace Union, in an interview to Philadelphia, "then many a man who now ridicules the peace movement will claim to have been its lifelong champion.

"It is always so. We thump and kick a poor, weak, struggling movement at its inception, and when it has succeeded and no longer needs our help, we give it the most solicitous support.

"There was once a young lady whose betrothed, a very poor young man, was about to set out for South America to seek his fortune in the rubber trade.

"As he took leave of her the night before his departure, he said, tremulously:

"And you swear to be true to me, Irene?"

"Yes, Heber," cried the girl; "yes, if you're successful."

A Way to Save Money

Ian MacLaren was talking to a group of literary beginners.

"Begin your stories well," he said emphatically. "There is nothing like a good beginning. Indeed, it's half the battle."

"Always begin in the case of the young man who, desiring to marry, secured a favorable hearing from his sweetheart's father by opening the interview with the words:

Common Complexion Ills

NO one suffers more keenly in warm weather than the girl afflicted by an oily, shiny skin. Generally this condition is accompanied by a few pimples at least and often by blackheads. In winter the ailment is less conspicuous because of the cold, dry atmosphere, but summer, with its dog-days and perspiration, greatly increases her discomfort. The girl with the dry, clean-looking skin can have no conception of the physical discomfort as well as embarrassment of the girl who must struggle against the double annoyance of an oily skin.

The first mistake made by the girl with the oily skin lies in using powerful alkali soaps to dry up the oil, or cream with whose ingredients she is not familiar. I am outlining here a safe treatment for oily skin, whether or not accompanied by blackheads and pimples, and, in addition, I would say that the patient should be most careful about her diet, avoiding rich meats, dishes, much butter and sweetmeats.

Use warm water in washing the face and add each time a few drops of tincture of benzoin. This turns the water a cloudy or milky hue, but it is the best substitute for soap for the oily complexion. In the morning give the face a genuine bath, using hot and cold waters alternately, say about six waters altogether, and in the last cold or rinsing water drop the benzoin. A soft flesh brush will help to keep the pores open, but a rough wash rag thoroughly manipulated will secure the same results. Two or three times a day apply the following lotion:

Purifying borax, 1 ounce; pure glycerine, 2 ounces; camphor water (not spirit of camphor), 3 quarts.

In case glycerine does not agree with your skin, substitute this lotion: Boracic acid, 1 dram; alcohol, 1 ounce; rosewater, 2 ounces.

Apply either of these lotions with a soft bit of table linen or an old handkerchief, and keep the latter washed clean. Do not use a sponge, which is apt to become rancid and uncleanly.

If in addition to the oily skin, there is a muddy, clear the skin through the digestive organs, using a gentle laxative, and a diet of fruit, vegetables and salad in whose dressing a little olive oil is always mixed.

If there are blackheads and pimples (and these generally accompany the large pores common to the oily skin), use this treatment:

Cleanse the face with the cleansing cream, remove at once with a soft towel, bathe in hot water, and apply the blackhead lotion. If there are pimples and no blackheads, apply the pimple lotion.

Once a week steam the face over a basin of boiling water, covering the head with a towel. Partially dry the face and the purpose is to open the pores and to press out the blackheads, and, if the pimples have formed a yellow head, contents of these may also be expelled with the instrument. Massage for ten minutes with the massage cream for pimples. Remove all the cream from the face, and bathe with toilet water.

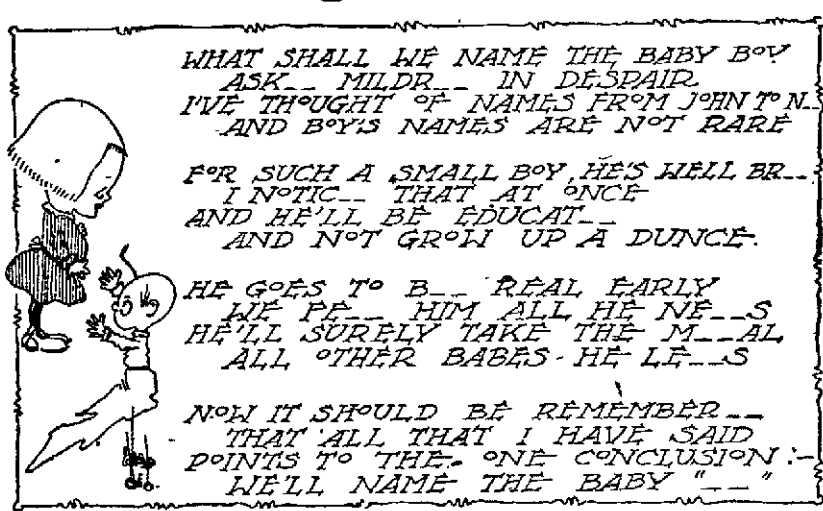

Blackhead Lotion: Boracic acid, 1 dram; alcohol, 1 ounce; rosewater, 2 ounces.

Massage Cream: Express oil of sweet almonds, 80 minims; fresh cucumber juice, 1 ounce; lanoline, 4 drams; oil of rose, 4 drops. Melt the oil and lanoline in a double boiler. Remove from the fire, stir in the cucumber juice. Before the mixture cools add the perfume. Beat until cool.

Cleansing Cream: Orange flower water, 4 ounces; oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; white wax, 2 ounces. Melt the wax and oil in a double boiler. Remove from the fire and beat until cool. Cleansing cream is always applied with the tips of the fingers in a rotary motion and removed at once with a soft towel.

Pimple Lotion: Precipitate sulphur, 1 dram; camphor, 1 dram; glycerine, 1 dram; rosewater, 4 ounces.

A Missing Letter Puzzle

The Dressmaker's Bureau

Dear Miss Dane—Would you kindly suggest a way in which to make up material like enclosed sample, of which I have 10 yards? Am 5 feet 7 inches tall, 36 inch bust and hip measures and 24 inches waist measure.—Marion.

The double skirt effect will be the most becoming development of the pale green and white striped gingham. I should tuck a short skirt into the belt and finish the bottom with a hem and a couple of tucks, which may, or may not, be piped with plain green. The lower skirt—deep flounce—will be treated in a similar manner, and be added to the upper skirt under the hem. A band of embroidery may form the connection, if preferred, to the double skirt effect, but some horizontal arrangement is necessary in order to break the long lines of the stripes, seeing that you are so tall and slender.

The waist, which is in Japanese kimono style, could be sleeves finely tucked and hemmed with plain green linen, the guimpe to be of lingerie. If, however, you prefer the skirt waist effect, tuck the material on the shoulders and bring out in a square or a black belt. Cut out in a green at the neck for wear with chemises and edge with the plain goods. The sleeves will be fairly full bishop, ending in cuffs of the solid color, and a little bit of white needle work. Either model will become you, and both are equally convenient for laundering.

Dear Miss Dane. Having read your letters, I decided to write you just what I have to make a linen coat. I have a white linen skirt and would like very much for you to tell me how to make it. I would also be very much obliged to you, if you would tell me what colors I look well in, and how to fix my hair. I have a quantity of straight brown hair, gray eyes, and fair skin, with rosy cheeks and lips. I am 12 years old, and weight 123 pounds and am 5 feet 6 inches high. Am I not very fat for my age? Fatty.

I wish you had told me how your skirt was made, as that would have assisted me in planning the coat. A pinksy style will become you, and this looks well in linen, the flat collar and cuffs to be white or a contrasting color. If the coat comes in as a wrap over other dresses, then I think the semi-fitting box or Prince Chap model will be better.

Roll your hair back from the face, tie with ribbons, arrange in two braids and tie again. Your eyes are not quite right. Becoming colors are gray, all shades of blue, also green, dark red, yellow, pale pink, mauve, brown, tan, old rose, and cream.

Dear Miss Dane: Please tell me if I can safely use cluny insertions like enclosed sample to alter a last summer's linen suit of light gray? It is a long coat and I thought I would cut it to about length of pony coat, trimming skirt and coat in the cluny. I live in a small town and do not know whether this kind of cluny is used on linen suits or not.—Mrs. H. A. F.

Open air exercise and generous diet are the first things to resort to in cases of this kind. Under all circumstances get all the sunlight possible. Expose as much of the body to it as you can. The sunlight is, without any question, one of the greatest and most curative agents in the world. Back this curative treatment up with the proper kind of tonic and you will have gone far on the road to ultimate recovery.

Cooling Drink

Fruit Punches. Take a pint of fresh raspberries and a quart of currants, wash and then bruise them. Pour over these two cups of water and a half pound of sugar (preferably brown). Let this come to a boil very slowly, then remove and strain through a jelly bag. This should be allowed to cool, then set on the ice. It should be served in individual glasses with a large piece of ice.

Bones of fowl, game or chops must not be taken in the finger, but green corn may be eaten that way.

Artichokes, source of much grief to the intercolic, dinner if served hot or cold with sauce, must be broken apart, leaf by leaf, and the tin dipped in the sauce, and eaten from the fingers. The heart is cut up and eaten with a fork.

Finger bowls are provided merely to moisten the finger tips, not for a general handwashing.

Your host who inquires what portion of poultry or game, rare meat or well done, you prefer, will thank you for a definite answer. If you really have no preference, say so definitely. Do not enumerate various cuts that appeal to you.

This is good for spots and stains rather than general bleaching. It will, however, whiten time-yellowed linens, but less wear than any other thing. Put a gill of the solution in two gallons of freshly boiled water, and wet the linens thoroughly in it before washing. Take care not to scratch or cut the hands, as the oxalic acid is a virulent poison. Hence, never venture to keep it without a staring warning label. Put four ounces of acid crystals and half a pint of cold water into a bottle. Shake until the water is a saturated solution; that is, until it has taken up all the acid it can dissolve. A few ragged crystals will remain. After using part of the first solution, add a gill more water.

To Kill Roaches. Mix dry powdered borax with its own bulk of white sugar, and set it in shallow vessels all about where the crawling pests visit themselves. Renew the mixture every few days, taking care to sweep up and burn all the dead insects. Paint visible pipes, and the spaces where they enter the wall, periodically with turpentine. Let the turpentine run down and around pipes, especially hot-water pipes, but be careful to do it when the water is cool. Now and again pour a spoonful of pure turpentine down sinks and traps. Cut Irish potatoes in half, dip the cut sides in the borax and sugar, and lay them about under sinks, tubs, and closets; indeed, in any place that offers safe harborage. Do this toward evening. In the morning gather the potatoes, which should lie cut-side down, very quickly, and drop them into a bucket of boiling water. If insects are plenty, there will likely be from one to a dozen clinging to each piece.

For Mosquitoes

The mosquito is commonly a local insect, seldom prevalent more than a mile from its breeding spot. Hence the usefulness of prevention. Mosquitoes invariably breed in stagnant water. Seek out all such spots as soon as ice melts, and cover their surface with thin layers of crude kerosene. One ounce will spread over fifteen square feet of surface. Two weeks later make a second application, and, after a month, a third. By concerted action almost any suburban place or country neighborhood may be rid of these pests.

Where prevention is impossible, close sleeping rooms tight in the morning and burn in each of them a tea-spoonful of Persian insect powder. Leave closed for three hours, then air well while the sun is hottest, and put back screens. Where a room must be occupied at once, and is found infested with mosquitoes, put a pinch of gunpowder upon a plate, set it in the middle of the room, and touch it off by means of a greased thread, lighted and allowed to act as a fuse. The concussion of explosion will kill most of the mosquitoes, and so still the rest they may be easily fought away.

Flea Fighting

The wicked flea pursues man, his dog, his cat, his pig, and, now and then, his cow and his goat. Wherefore he is a pest not to be lightly regarded. Cleanliness prevents him for the most part, but now and again into each life some new must fall. In addition to the remedies hereafter indicated, set foot in such places as the first thing is to rake and sweep, and all that is raked, sprinkle the place with powders of sulphur, then with kerosene, and set it afire. If this is impracticable, as where the flea-bearer is under a house, get poles of pawpaw, red gum, yucca, hickory, anything, indeed, with a sweetish sap, have them peeled of bark and then split into thin shavings. Lay them pole in a while, then draw them carefully out, and scald with boiling water. The fleas will cling to the poles, sucking for dear life, especially if they are thin, starveling fellows, who have never known the delights of blood-sucking.

GOOD HEALTH

A Few Simple Hints On Simple Ways to Remain Well

By COUSIN JOHN.

ARTICLE No. VI.

MOST peculiar result that often follows over-work or over-worry is a partial loss of memory coupled many times with an overwhelming feeling of gloom and depression.

As this feeling is altogether mental, the sufferer is very apt not to consult a physician, because it does not appear that the trouble has anything to do with any lack of health.

As a consequence, the mental condition becomes worse and worse until in thousands of cases the sufferers are affected to such a degree that their brains are affected and that they are losing their minds.

As the days go by they brood more and more continuously over their troubles, until finally they actually manage to produce symptoms that will deceive even specialists into thinking for a while that they really have mental trouble.

As a matter of fact, if people would only realize more keenly that an unhealthy mind is generally the result of an unhealthy body, they would seek aid in the beginning and a competent physician would pull them through their trouble in short order.

There are very many cases of high grade nervousness and hysteria, sleeplessness and even such cases as alcoholism, etc., that can be readily overcome by a system that is properly worked out and strengthened. Men and women often resort to the use of narcotics or stimulants, not because they wish to stimulate, but they are looking for something to alleviate their ailments.

Etiquette in Bereavement

IMMEDIATELY after a death occurs in the family, some cool-headed, entirely reliable friend or relative should be placed in charge of all arrangements, and all instructions or orders of help should pass through his hands to and from the family. The entire front of the house should be closed and all shades drawn, while a maid or friend should be in attendance to receive callers, messages of sympathy, cards, etc. The bell should be muffled and the door opened without noise that would distract members of the family within doors. The maid or friend should dress in black.

Plain crepe, black or white, is seldom attached to the door now, flowers being used more generally. White flowers, with white ribbon, denote the death of a child or young girl; roses and violets with white or black ribbon, the death of an adult.

Unless the funeral services are held immediately because the interment is to be in another city, a newspaper notice of the death and hour of the funeral is sufficient. If there is not time for this, friends may be notified by telephone or messenger. A brief notice with the words, "please omit flowers," or "interment private," is all that is necessary.

No member of the family should be seen abroad. The family friend, select, will arrange for the lot, notify the pall bearers, clergyman, choir, etc. Dressmakers or clerks from stores will be sent, upon notification, to supply the needs of the women in the family. It is the privilege of the family to make the services as private as they desire, and to refuse to see all callers. This is not regarded as rude, but in better taste than noisy exhibitions of grief and the turning of so sad an occasion into a display of condolence.

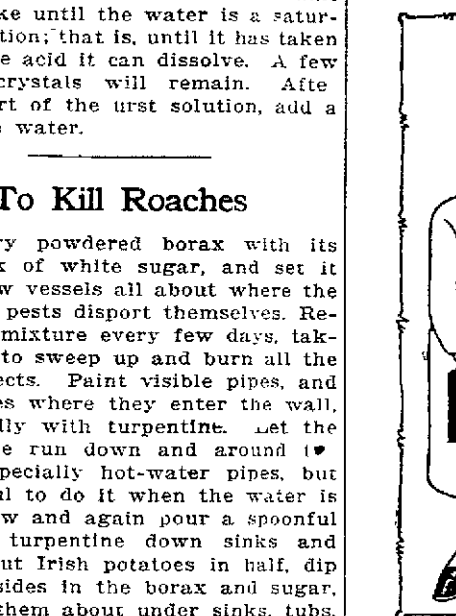

A word of caution. It is no longer considered good form to take a band of black on a colored coat sleeve. If complete mourning is not assumed, quiet colors like grey or tan are worn, but without the black band, which is really the badge of servants in a house of mourning.

The quantity of material required for the medium size (4 years) is 3 1/2 yards 27, 2 3/4 yards 36 or 1 3/4 yards 44 inches wide with 1/4 yards of insertion to trim as illustrated.

Some Social Emergencies

NO matter how well plans are laid, they will go awry, creating moments of embarrassment and placing actors in the social drama in somewhat trying positions. The writer on etiquette who will compile a little book on "Social Emergencies and How to Meet Them," will accomplish real good for the uninitiated.

For instance, there is the moment when you come face to face with your bitterest enemy in the parlor or on the porch of a mutual friend. What shall you do? Perhaps you think that if you play the role of a lady or a gentleman to relieve the embarrassment of your hostess, you will lower your dignity. Of a truth, however, you will be merely maintaining it. Not long ago, a pretty wedding was almost ruined by just such a meeting. Two girls who had not spoken for months were, through the mismanagement of some well-intentioned member of the assisting party, placed at the same table when the wedding breakfast was served. Miss A—

met B's existence the next time they met?

But the other girl flung back a look of scorn that was more rude than words could have been. It all happened in the twinkling of an eye, but not so quickly that the men assigned to the same table did not catch the drift of the incident. As a result, they were assiduously attentive to the peace-maker and ignored, as far as they dared, the girl who could not bridge pride to good form. The bride and her mother, watching the little comedy from afar, felt that some of the brightness of the day had been effaced by the mistake for which they were not to blame. How much more graceful the little game of good manners for the few minutes, if only to ignore Miss B's existence the next time they met?

If you find yourself fellow guest with a man or woman you do not like and the gathering is large, you can skillfully avert an encounter. If it is smaller and you must meet, at least remember your duty to your hostess who probably knew nothing of the existing animosity. And if you think your presence will embarrass every one concerned, in a little pitcher one-half pint brandy, select a deep cake tin and grease with butter, line it inside with white paper and on the outside and bottom with four or five thick pieces of muslin. Have your own burn out quickly. Now beat the butter and sugar once more, add the eggs two at a time, beating the mixture after each addition. When the eggs are all used, turn in the flour and fruit with a prepared cake thoroughly, pour into the prepared tin, cover with several thicknesses of brown paper, and bake for eight hours. Keep the oven steady and clear. Remove from the oven and allow it to stand on tin sheet until quite cool. Ice with a thin coat of white icing top and sides and stand in a cool place to dry. Then give it a second coat of thick icing and ornament according to fancy. An icing made of white egg, a few drops of cold water and soft cream's sugar is the best for the thick icing.

An excellent white cake for the bride to cut is this: Take the whites of eight eggs, stiffly beaten, 1 pound of sugar, 1 pound of flour, 1 cup of sweet milk, 2 spoonful of butter (scant), 2 spoonful of cream tartar. Cream the butter and sugar and add slowly the milk and soda, dissolving the soda in tepid water. Stir the cream of tartar with the flour and add the flour alternately with the whites of eggs. Flavor with vanilla, and bake in a square loaf, or a round tube tin.

Old Fashioned Wedding Cake. For this should be prepared in advance as follows: Six cups of currants, washed, dried and picked. Three cups sultana raisins, three cups of citron cut in fine strips, one-half cup candied lemon peel, two cups of almonds, blanched and cut in shreds. In a warm bowl mix four cups of butter and four cups of sugar, granulated or confectioner's, beat these together until very light. Break ten eggs into another bowl, but do not beat them. Cover a waiter with a big sheet of paper; sift four flours over this, add the fruit and the following spices: two teaspoons each of nutmeg, mace and cinnamon, one tablespoon each of cloves and allspice. Mix the ingredients and stand aside, ready for use. Have ready in a little pitcher one-half pint brandy. Select a deep cake tin and grease with butter, line it inside with white paper and on the outside and bottom with four or five thick pieces of muslin. Have your own burn out quickly. Now beat the butter and sugar once more, add the eggs two at a time, beating the mixture after each addition. Then give it a second coat of thick icing and ornament according to fancy. An icing made of white egg, a few drops of cold water and soft cream's sugar is the best for the thick icing.

When I am calling, and another guest arrives just as I am leaving, do I wait for an introduction?" writes a young matron.

Not necessarily. If your call is about over, you merely wait until your hostess has greeted her guest and then you make your adieu. If your hostess evidently desires that you meet the new-comer (and she will show this desire at once) you acknowledge the introduction, join in their conversation for just a few moments, express your pleasure at the meeting and then retire. Never rise to depart just as the bell rings, the servant announces another caller. It is embarrassing for your hostess to speed the departing guest and greet the new arrival simultaneously.

"When I meet a good man at the home of a mutual friend, like at a tea or dance, and we are not introduced, do I speak to him the next time we meet?" inquires a young matron.

It is rather better form not to do so. If the affair is not large, say a porch party or small dance, it is your hostess' duty to have the various young men presented to you. If she fails in this respect and the young man really desires to meet you, he can ask for an introduction. On the other hand, at a large affair, if a man shows you some small courtesy, such as picking up your fan, finding your partner or your wraps, even without an introduction, the fact that you were fellow guests permits you to recognize him the next time you meet. This question is one which must be settled largely by malice instinct.

Child's Empire Frock

How much the models of Empire style may be doubted for the older folk they suit the wee girls admirably well and are most attractive seen in the little dresses of lawn, batiste and the like. This one is eminently simple yet shows the characteristic features and as illustrated is made of white lawn with trimming of light tucks and embroidery. All the lighter weight materials are, however, appropriate, figured square neck and plain short sleeves are both charming and becoming and the short waisted effect can be trusted to suit childish figures admirably well.

The dress is made with the waist and skirt. The skirt is gathered at both upper and lower edges and is joined at its upper edge to the narrow square yoke, at its lower edge to the belt. The sleeves are small puffs finished with straight bands and the skirt is quite straight, finished with hem and tucks at the lower edge, and gathered at the upper, where it is joined to the lower edge of the belt over which the sash is arranged.

The Gentler Sex in the News

Much of the long life which Miss Susan B. Anthony gave to the cause of equal suffrage was spent in raising funds with which to carry on the campaign. A short time before her death she expressed to the National Woman Suffrage Association, at its meeting in Baltimore, her fear that the work would suffer from lack of means when she was no longer able to help. She also stated her belief that if the sum of $12,000 a year could be placed at the disposal of the association for the next five years it would accomplish more than all that had been done during the preceding thirty years.

The ground had been broken and the seed sown. People were interested and awake to what was in the minds of women. It was time to reap some of the results.

Miss Anthony has been dead but little more than a year, yet the fund she asked for is already complete. The women who knew her and worked with her and understood how close to her heart was the cause she served so long decided that they could raise no memorial to her memory which would have been more pleasing to her. The Susan B. Anthony fund of $60,000 is her monument.

There is something eminently fitting and beautiful in that kind of a tribute to the dead. A bust or a statue may say little to those who come after, but to continue the work in which a loved one was interested here is not merely to keep his memory green; and to tell to strangers what manner of man he was; it is actually to keep alive and imperishable the qualities which made him.

Titled Business Women

It is during the warm and uncomfortable dog-days that women realize the comfort and indispensableness of a cool, dainty dressing sacque or negligee. All the designs sketched on this page are quite simple and easy to make, and as individual fancy is allowed a wider range in these garments than in any other, very pleasing effects may be obtained by using the odd bits of trimming, laces and ribbons one may have on hand. Remnants of pretty dainty materials may be utilized also in the making of these useful little garments.

No. 5746 is one of the new Jumper dressing sacques. It is very simple and comfortable, and at the same time graceful and becoming. It is cut in low, round neck and slips on easily over the head. The short full sleeve is in keeping with the simple daintiness of the mode, and is exceedingly pretty. As shown, it was developed in pink dimity, swiss embroidery being used for the yoke, but may be made with success from any reasonable material such as lawn, China silk, batiste and challis. For 36-inch bust measure $2\frac{3}{4}$ yards of 36-inch material will be required for the making.

LADIES' JUMPER DRESSING SACQUE. No. 5746. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

No more graceful house jacket could be devised than the charming model shown in 5776. It was developed in black and white dotted swiss, the square cut neck and elbow sleeves finished with beading run with black ribbon velvet. The simple shaping is effected by shoulder and underarm seams, the fullness falling in soft folds below the tucks, that are taken up on each side of the centre front. The tucks in the back extend to the waistline, and a belt of the material encircles the waist, giving that trim look so essential to a garment of this kind. If preferred, the sleeves may extend to the wrist, completed by straight cuffs. Lawn, flowered dimity, cotton crepe, cashmere and albatross are all suitable for reproduction. For 36 inches bust measure $3\frac{1}{4}$ yards of material 36 inches wide will be required.

LADIES' DRESSING SACQUE. No. 5776. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

Design No. 5728 is particularly good style, and while really a garment for comfort is at the same time very dainty and becoming. Tucks are laid in the front to about yoke depth, and the fullness at the waistline in the back is confined by gathers held in position by a stay. A fancy collar trimmed with lace gives a pretty finish and the belt may be of the material or ribbon could be used. A very pretty garment could be made after this pattern at very little expense in the dainty dimities and lawns, but China silk, albatross, outing flannel and cotton crepe are all appropriate. For 36-inch bust measure $3\frac{1}{4}$ yards of 36-inch material will be required.

LADIES' DRESSING SACQUE. No. 5728. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

For solid comfort and ease there is no house garment that quite takes the place of the graceful kimono. The pretty model here illustrated is cut on the simplest lines and is shown in a dainty development of figured white China silk with trimming bands of plain colored silk. The garment is shaped by centre back and underarm seams, and tucks arranged in front and back produce a graceful fullness. The Japanese fabrics are most attractive for these little negligees, and are to be found in bright colors and attractive designs. Lawn, dimity, silk, challis and cotton crepe are also available. The medium size will require 3 yards of 36-inch material for the making.

LADIES' KIMONO. No. 5825. Sizes for small, medium and large.

Patterns of these illustrations will be sent giving correct number and size, and mailing with 10 cents in silver or stamps to Marjorie Dane, 44 East Twenty-third street, New York City.
